Tax treatment of the profit share

Disclaimer – Al Rayan Bank accept no liability in respect of your use of the information provided in this statement. The information provided is generic in nature. Your own individual facts and circumstances may mean that the information provided in this section is not applicable to you. If in doubt you should contact your tax adviser or your local tax office to clarify your tax position.

Individual account holders

Since 6 April 2016 all banks and building societies are no longer required to deduct tax from the savings returns you earn. If you are a basic or higher rate tax payer, you have an annual Personal Savings Allowance (PSA), allowing you to earn profit tax-free. However, once you reach your PSA limit, you will be required to pay tax on your profit. The PSA excludes ISAs, which continue to be tax-free for eligible customers.

The profit earned on a savings account is classed as income. Savers currently pay tax on this income, based on their income tax bracket. Under PSA basic rate taxpayers (20%) will be able to earn £1,000 in savings tax-free, whilst higher rate tax payers (40%) will receive a £500 allowance. Additional rate (45%) taxpayers will not receive any allowance.

Any savings returns you earn above your Personal Savings Allowance are subject to UK tax and it will be your responsibility to declare this to HM Revenue & Customs. Please note this applies to the total savings returns you earn from all the banks and building societies, not just Al Rayan Bank. You can find out more about PSA on gov.uk. If you have any questions about how the PSA affects your accounts with Al Rayan Bank, please either visit our website at alrayanbank.co.uk/psa, call us on 0800 4086 407 or visit

Account holders who are companies within the charge to corporation tax

For the purposes of UK tax law, the profit share you receive is treated as a return on a loan equivalent to the amount deposited with Al Rayan Bank, and is taxed as if it were a return on a loan relationship under Chapter 2 of Part 4 Finance Act 1996.
